

Immaculate Conception at 100 Years

The Name of Immaculate Conception

This is the title given to the Blessed Virgin Mary as sinless from her first moment of existence. Pope Pius IX made this solemn definition in 1854: "The most holy Virgin Mary was, in the first moment of her conception, by a unique gift of grace and privilege of Almighty God, in view of the merits of Jesus Christ the Redeemer of mankind, preserved free from all stain of original sin." This means that from the first moment of her human existence the mother of Jesus was preserved from the common defect of separation from God, which came to man through the sin of Adam. Her freedom from sin was an unmerited gift of God or special grace which no other created person has received.

First Pastor 1914 - 1953

Rev. Msgr. Anthony Briška

Born: July 9, 1885
Arrived in the United States: 1908
Ordained by Archbishop James
Quigley of Chicago: 1912
Died: September 2, 1953

While Father Briška sacrificed greatly to keep the Lithuanian heritage alive in the United States, he never forgot Lithuania itself, either. While caring for the needs of his growing new parish, he also sought to found a house for Lithuanian priests and seminarians studying in Rome. "We must have our Catholic priests ready when Soviet Russia moves out, in order to help Lithuania, a Catholic country," he stated (notice in The Guardian, the Catholic paper of Little Rock, Arkansas, April 18, 1947, p. 6). He named his new institution after St. Casimir.

For these and other apostolic efforts, Father Briška was given the Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice medal and named a Knight of the Holy Sepulchre. In 1949, Pope Pius XII gave him the title Very Reverend Monsignor. He is buried in St. Casimir Cemetery in Chicago.

Immaculate Conception Parish was established in 1914 by Lithuanian immigrants in the Brighton Park area. The parish's first four pastors were Lithuanian, and the parish still retains a distinctly Lithuanian character today even though, demographically, the faith community is predominantly Hispanic. During the first hundred years of its existence, Immaculate Conception has been led by just six pastors: Rev. Monsignor Anthony Briška (1914-1953), Rev. Monsignor Damasus Mozeris (1953-1986), Rev. Monsignor John Kuzinskas (1986-1988), Rev. Anthony Puchenski (1988-1999), Rev. Thomas Koys (1999-2012), and Rev. Robert Coleman (2012-present). United in devotion to the Catholic Faith and particularly to the Blessed Mother, however, all of Immaculate Conception's members cherish the past, savor the present, and look forward to the future.

The Parish Established

In 1914, Brighton Park was an undeveloped area on the outskirts of the city of Chicago. Parishes, in those days, had strong ethnic identities, as immigrants from given countries tended to stay together in order to preserve their language and customs. Immaculate Conception was no exception.

It was a group of approximately sixty families that wanted to see a new parish founded in the Brighton Park area. They had come to America fleeing the rule of the Russian czar, and wanted to practice their Faith without interference. Archbishop James Quigley blessed their efforts and, on September 10, 1914, selected Father Anthony Briška from Holy Cross as their pastor. Immaculate Conception's

Dear Friends of Immaculate Conception Parish,

The slogan for this centennial year, as you can see on the cover of this memorial book, is "A Century in Mary's Hands." One hundred years is a long time. It is longer than the life expectancy of most people and the parish has seen many people come and go during that time. Throughout these 100 years, Our Blessed Mother has been guiding and interceding for us. What an honor to have a parish named for her Immaculate Conception as a constant reminder that Mary began her journey unlike any other human being! She was free from sinful condition from the moment of her conception. This was part of God's plan for the redemption of mankind that she would be chosen to be the Mother of God.

A centennial celebration is a time to pause and to give thanks to God for His many blessings upon this parish since it began September 10th, 1914.

A centennial celebration is also a wonderful time to look back and remember those who have gone before us sacrificing and laboring for the spiritual well being of the parish. They have given us a beautiful church in which to pray and worship. They also handed on to us the ample school building which was used to educate our children in the Catholic faith for 85 years by the Sisters of St. Casimir for most of those years. It is now being used as a government charter school with the income helping to keep the parish and its ministries solvent for years to come. The convent housed those Sisters for many years and is now used as a food pantry for the poor, as well as for parish meetings and retreats. The love and sacrifice of those who have gone before us has made our parish what it is today.

A centennial celebration is also a time to look to the future and the next 100 years. We know that we who are here now have the responsibility to keep Immaculate Conception alive and well for those who will come after us.

I hope that you will find this book educational in reading about the history of our parish, enjoyable in reminiscing as you look at the pictures chosen, and inspirational as you see what can be accomplished by those who love their Faith and the parish entrusted to them.

Thank you to all who purchased ads to make publishing this book possible.

In Christ,

Rev. Robert P. Coleman

OFFICE OF THE ARCHBISHOP

ARCHDIOCESE OF CHICAGO

Francis Cardinal George, OMI
Archbishop of Chicago

September 2014

Dear Friends in Christ:

I am happy to send you my greetings and congratulations on the occasion of the 100th anniversary of your parish, Immaculate Conception on 44th Street in Chicago. It was a pleasure for me to be with you as celebrant of your Centennial Mass on September 21. Together with you, I praise and thank God, who stirs up faith and calls people to holiness in every generation, for the many ways in which the people of Immaculate Conception Parish, over the past century, have lived as disciples of the Lord and continue to introduce others to Him.

Pope Francis has spoken of the parish as "the Church living in the midst of the homes of her sons and daughters." On this historic occasion, we remember the courage, faith and vision of the Lithuanian Catholic founders of Immaculate Conception, who came to Archbishop James Quigley and requested his permission to form a parish, even though the Brighton Park neighborhood was still largely prairies and swampland. Guided by the Holy Spirit, nourished by the zeal and labor of its priests, religious and lay leaders, and supported by the sacrifices of its parishioners, Immaculate Conception Parish has been a place where people knew they could come to learn who Christ is, worship Him with reverence and joy, meet Him in the Sacraments and express their love for Him through works of charity and compassion. Immaculate Conception Parish today is a community in which the Church lives in many homes, in households that speak different languages and follow different customs, but are united by their love for the Lord and His Church. As your Archbishop, I am proud of your parish and all who have contributed to its life over the past ten decades, and whose vision sustains its vitality today.

I thank you for all that you do to touch the lives of others with Christ's love, and to enable another generation to make His compassion visible to a world that needs, more than ever, to be reminded of His presence. Through the intercession of the Blessed Virgin Mary, may the prayers that are lifted up, the memories that are recalled and the hopes that are shared during your centennial nurture your love for the Lord and for all those whom He loves. May your enduring faith inspire many to serve the Church in ordained priesthood and in consecrated life. I will continue to remember you in prayer, even as I count on yours. God bless you and those you love.

Sincerely yours in Christ,

Francis Cardinal George, O.M.I.

Immaculate Conception Parish

*2745 W. 44th Street
Chicago, Illinois 60632*

his book is dedicated to all priests, sisters of St. Casimir, religious, and parishioners who have served Immaculate Conception Parish in the past 100 years.

first Mass was actually celebrated, three days after his appointment, in the basement chapel of nearby St. Joseph and St. Anne Parish. Father lived in an apartment on California Avenue while a committee investigated the possibility of building the new church at 44th and Fairfield.

Twenty lots were eventually purchased for this purpose, and the new parish attracted new members as well. The sixty founding families were joined by another two hundred, during that first year alone. While construction of the original church was underway, Father Briška continued borrowing the basement of St. Joseph and St. Anne Parish to celebrate the sacraments for his growing flock. It was on October 17, 1915, that Immaculate Conception's first church building was opened and blessed.

Immaculate Conception Parish on 44th Street was off to a great start. Father Briška, for one thing, finally had living quarters of his own, and the children of the parish had a two-room school to attend. There were about a hundred youngsters needing to be educated at the time. The two lay teachers who undertook this daunting task were soon assisted by four Sisters of Nazareth. Still, by 1922—with over 500 students enrolled—the Sisters of St. Casimir stepped in.

Founded in Pennsylvania in 1907 by Venerable Servant of God Maria Kaupas, the Sisters of St. Casimir's specific mission was to support the faith of Lithuanian immigrants in the United States. Some of their members taught at Immaculate Conception until the closure of the school in 1999. From 1951 through 1988, there was even formal instruction in Lithuanian language and heritage for those of Lithuanian extraction. "It was a good education, spiritually as well as scholastically," insists present-day Immaculate Conception member Victor Kelmelis, who was taught by the Sisters of St. Casimir after arriving at the parish with his parents and sister in 1964.

St. Casimir himself (1461-1484) was a member of the Jagiellon Dynasty whose piety sometimes came into conflict with the demands of a royal lifestyle. He dressed plainly, ate little, and prayed often, but still fulfilled the duty of leading his father's armed forces against other European powers and against the invading Ottoman Turks. After a short life of intense piety, Casimir died early of tuberculosis. Canonized in 1602, his feast day is observed on March 4. He is honored as the patron saint of both Lithuania and Poland.

On September 2, 1953, Anthony Briška—by then a Monsignor—passed away. He had served his people and his Lord well, having successfully guided Immaculate Conception Parish through the first phase of its existence. By the time he was through, the parish debt had been paid off, a convent and rectory had been built, and approximately 700 students were attending the school.

The Call for Sainthood

It was commonly accepted among the Sisters of St. Casimir, priests and laity who knew Mother Maria Kaupas that she was a very holy person. Within a matter of hours after her death on April 17, 1940 the newspapers carried articles titled, "Sainthood Sought for Mother Maria."

Within three years of her death a holy card was printed praying for her beatification. Soon favors received through the intercession of Mother Maria Kaupas were recorded. Tireless efforts ensued on behalf of her Sisters to preserve the memory of her heroic virtuous life as it was noted in her dealings with the Sisters and the laity, and as found in her writings, her works and her accomplishments.

In October 2009, the Congregation for Causes of Saints in Rome completed the reading of the "Positio," the book on the heroic, virtuous life of Mother Maria Kaupas. The nine theologians given the assignment gave a unanimous positive vote.

On July 1, 2010, the Congregation for the Causes of Saints announced that Mother Maria be named "Venerable."

Rev. Msgr. Damasus Mozeris

Born: December 11, 1915

Died: August 1, 2002

A New Pastor, and a New Church Building

On November 5, 1953, Monsignor Damasus Aloysius Mozeris became Immaculate Conception's second pastor. Born and raised in Cicero, Illinois, Monsignor Mozeris was a formidable theologian whose educational background included Quigley Preparatory Seminary, St. Mary of the Lake Seminary in Mundelein, and the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. His dissertation Doctrina sancti Leonis Magni de Christo Restitutore et Sacerdote ("The Teachings of Saint Leo the Great on Christ, Redeemer and Priest") is available, in Latin, online. Monsignor Mozeris is best remembered for expanding Father Briška's church structure into the building we know today, but he also capably guided the parish through some very difficult decades in the life of the Church and the world.

The first task Monsignor Mozeris undertook was a work of renovation. The existing convent and rectory were improved and a parking lot added, while the school got seven new classrooms and a playground. This project was completed and blessed on October 16, 1954, by Samuel Cardinal Strich of the Archdiocese of Chicago.

It was almost a decade later when Monsignor Mozeris turned his attention to the task of constructing a new and enlarged church. Immaculate Conception's 50th Anniversary Book describes the inspiration behind the specific structural improvements that were undertaken. "Our church," it says, "is of contemporary design, blending the traditional with the modern. The triple vaulted ceiling is a modern adaptation of the Romanesque arch. The entire structure is of reinforced concrete, finished with cut stone, brick, and faceted art glass. The theme of the architecture, from the circular baptistery in front to the graceful sweep of the nave towards the main altar, is to emphasize the liturgy."

Construction of the beautiful church which Monsignor Mozeris envisioned began on December 8, 1963—the Feast of the Immaculate Conception. The cornerstone itself featured a Lithuanian cross. Just over a year later, on Christmas Day of 1964, the 1,600 families who belonged to the parish by then celebrated Mass in their new church for the first time. The solemn dedication of this building—postponed due to the death of Albert Cardinal Meyer—was celebrated by Archbishop John Cody on October 2, 1966.

Monsignor Mozeris wasn't only concerned, however, with the physical structures of Immaculate Conception Parish. He dedicated himself to building up the life of the parish spiritually as well. Right off the bat, he established groups including the Teen Club, the Men's Club, and the Christian Family Movement.

He was also noted for extending and cherishing the ethnic heritage of the parish's founding families. "Of Lithuanian extraction himself, pastor of a Lithuanian parish," the parish's 35th Anniversary booklet explains, Monsignor Mozeris "was most ready to provide special services and celebrations for his Lithuanian parishioners, without in any way neglecting his other parishioners." During the 1950s, a great number of Lithuanian refugees impacted by the Second World War settled in Brighton Park, and Monsignor Mozeris welcomed them kindly. In the early 1950s, Mrs. Sofija Jonynienė, herself a World War II refugee, added to the existing school curriculum courses for children of Lithuanian heritage. As Lithuanian membership in the parish increased, however, more Lithuanian ministers were needed. Priests serving in this capacity included Father Paul Juknevičius, Father Fabian Kireilis, and Father John Plankis.

The 1960s and 1970s were especially tumultuous decades in the Church and in the world. Vatican II was held in Rome while, back at home, there was great social upheaval. A development that particularly concerned him was the, in effect, legalization of abortion throughout all fifty states by the 1973 Roe v. Wade decision of the Supreme Court. "These are days," Monsignor noted in his bulletin article of June 9, 1974, "when even in theology some strange opinions are put forth." He wrote in this and other articles about the need to respect the law of God rather than the law of man, if the law of man should presume to contradict Him.

Monsignor Mozeris stated convictions that are still applicable to our situation today. "As a Catholic in the medical field," says present-day Immaculate Conception member Yamira Ulloa, "I am very concerned that my faith might not be respected. If someone asked me to do an abortion, for example, I wouldn't do it. I don't believe in it, or in euthanasia, either. I plan to practice medicine in a way that protects life, not the opposite." Yamira is finishing up her pre-med courses at De Paul, while participating in parish life—especially, the Bible study group—at Immaculate Conception.

One well-remembered highlight of Monsignor Mozeris' time at Immaculate Conception was the visit of Pope John Paul II to the Brighton Park area in 1979. Associate pastor Father Tom Kasputis, and many of the children from Immaculate Conception School, were among those hoping to catch a glimpse of the pontiff as he traveled down a Brighton Park street which has since been renamed in his honor. The Holy Father celebrated Mass on that occasion in the parking lot of nearby Five Holy Martyrs Parish.

Arguably the dominant figure in the history of Immaculate Conception to date, Monsignor Damasus Mozeris retired in 1986, but continued to serve as Pastor Emeritus until his death in August

It was with great joy that Five Holy Martyrs parishioners of Brighton Park learned that their parish had been selected as the site of an open-air Mass to be celebrated by Pope John Paul II on October 5, 1979 during his three-day visit to Chicago. In preparation of the Pope's visit to Brighton Park, homeowners decorated their bungalows and two-flats with papal banners and signs of welcome. More than 17,500 people, from various parishes, organizations, and institutions of the Chicago Archdiocese participated in the special Mass that was held in the parking lot of Five Holy Martyrs Parish. Speaking in his native tongue, the Pope told the assembled crowd that their offertory gifts represented "all the contributions that the sons and daughters of our first homeland, Poland, have made to the history and life of their second homeland across the ocean." On January 16, 1980, the street in front of Five Holy Martyrs Church was named Pope John Paul II Drive. As a result of the action of the Chicago City Council, that portion of 43rd Street which extends from Kedzie to Western Avenues now bears the name of the first Polish Pope. (Lithuanians take pride in the fact that the Pope's mother was of Lithuanian descent.)

Third Pastor
1986 - 1988

Rev. Msgr. John Kuzinskas

Born: June 3, 1926
Ordained in 1952
by Cardinal Stritch
Died: July 4, 2013

Msgr. Kuzinskas was born in Waukegan June 3, 1926 to Lithuanian parents. He graduated from St. Bartholomew Catholic school in Waukegan, Quigley Preparatory Seminary and the University of Saint Mary of the Lake / Mundelein Seminary. He was ordained in 1952 by Cardinal Stritch.

His first year as a priest was served as assistant pastor at St. Thomas the Apostle Parish on Chicago's south side. From 1953 to 1966, Msgr. Kuzinskas was the assistant pastor of St. George, a Lithuanian parish that was closed in 1990. From 1966 to 1973, he was assistant pastor of Nativity BVM Parish on Washtenaw in Chicago.

In 1973, he was named administrator of St. Bartholomew in Waukegan and the following year became the pastor, a position he held until 1979. St. Bartholomew in Waukegan closed in 1991. For seven years beginning in 1979, Msgr. Kuzinskas was the pastor of Our Lady of Victory Parish on Chicago's northwest side. Fr. Dan McCarthy, pastor emeritus of St. Tarcisus, was associate pastor at Our Lady of Victory during part of this time and succeeded Msgr. Kuzinskas as pastor in 1981. "He was a great mentor to me and to a lot of priests and seminarians," McCarthy said. "He was a great people person and would move easily among people at a function, and if he didn't know their name, he would ask and never forget it," McCarthy added.

He served from 1986 to 1988 as pastor of Immaculate Conception Parish on 44th Street in Chicago before returning to Nativity BVM Parish as pastor. He retired in 1997 and was named pastor emeritus. That same year, he became chaplain at Holy Family Villa in Palos Park.

Msgr. Kuzinskas held a number of positions on Archdiocese boards including the Pastors Review Board, Catholic Cemeteries Board and a decade on the Board of Consultors from 1989 to 1999. He also served on the Priests' Senate and was a deputy Vicar in Vicariate IV and the Assistant Vicar for senior priests.

As a senior priest, Msgr. Kuzinskas continued to serve at various parishes helping out with Mass. "He was a generous and kind-hearted person who empowered a lot of priests and lay people and at the same time he was humble," said his friend, Fr. McCarthy.

In 2010 he was one of 20 Chicago priests on whom Pope Benedict XVI bestowed the clerical title of monsignor. The rarely bestowed honorific meant a lot to Monsignor Kuzinskas, who told the Tribune that it was "a reflection on the many people to whom and with whom you've ministered."

of 2002. His funeral Mass was celebrated by Francis Cardinal George. Monsignor Mozeris requested that, instead of flowers in his honor, donations be given to the Sisters of St. Casimir or to Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Chicago.

A Time of Transition

In the mid-1980s, when Monsignor Mozeris retired, a demographic shift was underway in America generally, and in the Brighton Park area particularly. The pockets of immigrant populations dating from the early 1900s were dissolving, while new waves of immigrants—mainly from Mexico—were arriving. Immaculate Conception slowly became a predominantly Hispanic parish, while continuing to respect and draw from its Lithuanian beginnings. There were two priests who guided Immaculate Conception through its time of major transition: Father John Kuzinskas and Father Anthony Puchenski.

Waukegan native Father John Kuzinskas was ordained in 1952. In 1966, he officiated at the wedding of President Lyndon B. Johnson's daughter Luci to Patrick Nugent in Washington, D.C. Nugent, like Father Kuzinskas, hailed from Waukegan.

Father Kuzinskas took over for Monsignor Mozeris at Immaculate Conception in 1986. It was during his relatively short tenure as pastor that Lithuania commemorated 600 years of Christianity (1387-1987). At Immaculate Conception, Auxiliary Bishop of Chicago Alfred L. Abramowicz celebrated an outdoor Mass, which Father Kuzinskas concelebrated. A procession consisting of school children, teachers, and all those attending Mass walked around the block carrying religious banners and singing hymns. To mark the occasion, a large wooden cross in the traditional wayside style—which Father Kuzinskas blessed—had been erected in front of the rectory. Known for his kind pastoral style, Father Kuzinskas practiced a "ministry of presence" at the parish. He is also remembered for encouraging parishioner Joseph Panek to become a deacon.

Even after leaving Immaculate Conception in 1988, Father Kuzinskas strove to serve the Lithuanian community everywhere. Along with Joseph Cardinal Bernadin, he was part of a Chicago delegation that visited the Lithuanian bishops in 1990. "On the day that Lithuania declared its independence, he felt all his prayers had been answered," said Joseph Polikaitis, chairman of the Lithuanian-American Community of the United States. After serving in a number of parishes throughout the archdiocese, including his childhood parish of St. Bartholomew's, Monsignor Kuzinskas went on to his eternal reward in 2013.

Father Anthony Puchenski's tenure at Immaculate Conception lasted from 1988 until 1999. Also a Chicago-area native of Lithuanian extraction, Father Puchenski helped the parish face the change-over from predominantly Lithuanian to predominantly Hispanic. Under his leadership, a Hispanic Ministry was officially established at Immaculate Conception. The first Mass in Spanish was offered by Father Jose Marino in 1995.

Pablo Padilla was one of the many people of Mexican heritage who have found a spiritual home at Immaculate Conception. He and his wife Martha and their four children came to the Brighton Park area in the mid-1980s and have been active parishioners ever since then. "For these buildings and this community, I say thank you," he smiles.

Mexico, like Lithuania, is a devoutly Catholic country that has faced major persecution in modern times. It was in 1531 that Mary appeared to St. Juan Diego under the title of "Our Lady of Guadalupe," instructing him to pluck roses in December and take them to the bishop as an assurance from Heaven that her request to build a church on Tepeyac Hill was genuine. When Juan Diego let the roses spill forth, however, the more magnificent sign—Mary's own image, miraculously painted on his humble tilma—was revealed. Because of this apparition, countless Mexicans were converted to Christianity, and the horrific practice of pagan human sacrifice was all but halted. By the beginning of the twentieth century, however, Mexican politics had been infiltrated by factions deeply inimical to the practice of the Faith. Those who took up arms against the repressive government went by the name of Cristeros. Many others, like the heroic priest Blessed Miguel Pro, were executed even though they had not resorted to violence at all.

At Immaculate Conception Parish, then, two great cultures worship together, strengthening and complementing one another. Although with many who are neither Lithuanian nor Hispanic, the members of the parish all belong to the one, holy, catholic and apostolic Church. "The parishioners all share the same goal," Victor points out, "of spreading the Good News of Our Lord Jesus Christ!"

In addition to welcoming the growing Hispanic population of his parish, Father Puchenski also had to handle some very practical matters. By the early 1990s, for instance, the church building was in major need of repairs. Besides having a new roof put on, Father Puchenski—together with associate pastor Father Anthony Markus—had the church repainted, the light fixtures restored, and the red carpeting replaced with light purple carpeting. The red altar railings

Fourth Pastor 1988 - 1999

Rev. Anthony Puchenski

Born: January 16, 1945

Ordained 1971

by John Cardinal Cody

Died: August 11, 2010

Fr. Puchenski was born and raised in the Midway East area and identified strongly with his Lithuanian heritage and community. He graduated from St. Nicholas of Tolentine School, Archbishop Quigley Preparatory Seminary and the University of St. Mary of the Lake / Mundelein Seminary. He was ordained by John Cardinal Cody in 1971 and began a six-year assignment at Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary in his old neighborhood.

For the next 10 years, Fr. Puchenski remained in the southwest suburbs, serving from 1979 to 1984 at St. Damian in Oak Forest, and from 1984 to 1988 at St. Patricia in Hickory Hills. For 11 years, beginning in 1988, Fr. Puchenski was the pastor of Immaculate Conception on 44th Street on Chicago's southwest side.

He served as associate pastor and then administrator of St. Julie Billiairt in Tinley Park for five years from 2000-2005. For the next four years, Fr. Puchenski served as associate pastor at four parishes in Lemont: St. Alphonsus, St. Patrick, SS. Cyril & Methodius and St. James at Sag Bridge, before being named associate pastor of St. Zachary.

Fr. Joseph Mulcrone, a classmate of Fr. Puchenski, said he always wanted to be a parish priest and was fulfilled and happy in that role. "He was committed to the liturgy," Fr. Mulcrone added, "and he focused on the liturgy, insisting on good music and proclaiming the Word well."

by Joseph Cardinal Bernardin

*Bulletin article of July 1, 2001,

This week, our country will celebrate July 4th. July 3 represents another important anniversary in the life of this young country. It is the day, in 1893, when Abraham Lincoln's Union army finally won a major battle in our terrible Civil War. As a Catholic priest, I am very opposed to killing for just about any reason and the thought of war should never be brought up without realizing the incredible fallen state our human race is in, and the only true means of redemption through the life and death of Jesus Christ. Be that as it may, we should all take a moment to recognize what it was that the northern soldiers were fighting for. It hit me one day when I was planning a trip to Florida, if the North had not won the Battle of Gettysburg, the Confederacy probably would have won the war. I would need a passport to go to Disneyland. If the North would have lost, it is very likely that what we now recognize as one great and united country would be, not only two countries, but by this time at the beginning of the third Millennium, perhaps three or four or even six separate countries. Each country with strict border controls; each country with its own president and Supreme Court. This part of the world would have looked more like Europe with its many smaller countries, each with its own personality or culture. Each with its own gifts, for sure, but a continent with more potential for wars between nations. Another question is worth pondering. If the North would not have won the Battle of Gettysburg, would a divided American continent have been able to join together with sufficient strength to defeat Hitler and the Empire of Japan in World War II? I doubt it. This week does give us much to ponder.

at the entrance to the main altar were also removed, and the baptismal font was moved from the back of the church to the front.

In 1995, a Mass celebrated by Joseph Cardinal Bernardin of Chicago honored Immaculate Conception's 85th anniversary. But only four years later, an important era in the life of the parish came to an end. Due to economic pressures, the school closed in 1999. The Sisters of St. Casimir, although no longer teaching at the school, were involved in pastoral ministry at the parish until 2005. Father Puchenski who, after nearly twelve years as the dedicated pastor of Immaculate Conception Parish, served elsewhere in the Archdiocese until his death in 2010.

The Turn of the Millennium

Like Pablo Padillo, Alicia Ortega was happy to have found "such a good church" in Immaculate Conception Parish. Alicia does secretarial work for the parish, and helps out with the youth group and the choir. But she started out assisting the parish's fifth pastor—Father Thomas Koys.

Father Koys is from Riverside, Illinois. According to his mother, his very first word was "Jesus." As a matter of fact, he has been saying quite a bit about that subject ever since.

An accomplished and charismatic teacher, Father Koys holds a degree in philosophy from the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. While on sabbatical in 1998—just before being appointed as pastor of Immaculate Conception—he penned The Ashes That Still Remain (Oak Lawn: CMJ, 2002), an examination of the correlation between the dehumanizing injustice of slavery which sparked the Civil War, and the dehumanizing injustice of abortion that is dividing American society today. Father Koys hosted a weekly radio talk show on WYLL for a year and can now be heard on "Winds of Change" Catholic Radio Program on 950 AM on Wednesdays at noon.

Father Koys was the first pastor of Immaculate Conception who is not Lithuanian himself, and who speaks Spanish. While this is very helpful for the Hispanic ministry, it presented a challenge for the parish's Lithuanian members. Victor Kelmelis, who has been active in keeping up Immaculate Conception's Lithuanian connections all along, took a hand in seeing to it that Mass would still be offered in the parish's first language.

"Father Fabian Kireilis was at Immaculate Conception from 1973 until 2001," Victor explains, "and it is one of the miracles of our community" that he came and stayed so long. However, when his health failed, another miracle occurred. Through the tremendous efforts of Saloméja Daulienė and the approval of Bishop Rimantas Norvila in Lithuania, we were able to get a young priest from Lithuania, Father Jaunius Kelpšas, to live at our parish for ten years."

Even if Father Koys didn't speak Lithuanian himself, he learned enough to celebrate Mass in that language, as did his associate pastor, Father Edward Maxa. Father Ed came to Immaculate Conception in 1995, having served in the Archdiocese since his ordination in 1959. Alicia remembers him with special affection.

"He was really patient, and dedicated, and spiritual," she recalls. "If anyone ever needed anything, he would never say 'no.' He did so much to help establish the Spanish-speaking community here at Immaculate Conception, too. He was a great guy, always joking around—only, he was always losing his cell phone. He would constantly be going into his office to call himself and try to find it."

Father Koys, for his part, worked well with both the Lithuanian community and the Hispanic community to unite the parish. Under his leadership, the church hall was restored and repainted, the light purple carpeting was replaced with vinyl flooring with a wood design. It was Father Koys who had a beautiful sculpture of Our Lady of Guadalupe placed in front of the church. He was also able to rent out the school building to the Chicago Public School system, giving the parish a good source of rental income.

The Adoration Chapel was added during Father Koys' tenure as well. Designed out of the ushers' room, it features panels of stained glass from the old church. Devotion to Our Lord in the Blessed Sacrament is rooted deeply in the spirituality of the parish.

Back in the days of Monsignor Mozeris, the traditional 40 Hours Devotion was observed at Immaculate Conception, as his bulletin article of September 22, 1974 illustrates. In it, he writes: "With the revision of the liturgy, enthusiastic liturgists focused our attention almost entirely on this public worship of the Church. Private devotions were neglected by them, if not rejected. Yet the Vatican Council itself told us: 'The spiritual life, however, is not limited solely to participation in the liturgy. The Christian must also enter into his chambers to pray to the Father in secret. Popular devotions of the Christian people are to be highly commended.' The liturgy in no way conflicts with a sound appreciation for private prayer before the Blessed Sacrament. In fact, they complement one another. Anyone who spends some time in church outside of Mass—in prayer and adoration—will participate more perfectly at Mass."

A present-day parishioner who has been especially touched by the experience of Eucharistic adoration is Maria Martinez. Maria was working at a religious goods store when one of Mother Teresa's sisters

First of all, may I sincerely wish each and all the continuing blessings of a happy and blessed Easter! Using the most modern developments of technology and computers, we are now able to include photos in our weekly bulletin. And partly as an effort to develop our ability to do so, and partly in response to Father Tom's fascination with this capability, we are including several photos in this one.

"Stations" or the "Way of the Cross" has been one of Christianity's oldest traditions. This past Good Friday, thousands from the Brighton Park community continued this holy devotion, with a "Living Way of the Cross" which visited each of the four Brighton Park Catholic parishes, and ended with the final Station of the Crucifixion and Burial of Our Lord here at Immaculate Conception. Thanks to the cooperation of teams from St. Pancratius, Our Lady of Fatima, and Immaculate Conception, and the hard work of many of our young people . . . many hearts were touched with the eternal truth of Christ's love from the Cross.

by Father Bob Coleman

Dear Parishioners,

As you probably know by now, Cardinal George has appointed me as pastor of Immaculate Conception Parish. The assignment takes effect today, July 1. I am grateful to the Cardinal and to God for the opportunity of serving this community as your priest and pastor.

Unlike some 28 priests who will be moving in to their new parishes as pastors this weekend (including Father Tom), I don't have too far to move, just from one room of the rectory to another. As you know, I've been here since January as I finished my 14 years serving in Mexico, then came to fill in while Father Tom was on his sabbatical. Some of you also know that during my time in Mexico I used to stay here in the rectory when I would come for a visit about once a year. Father Tom was always gracious in giving me a place to "hang my hat." I've always enjoyed my stays here. You can be sure that I'll do the same for him when he wants to get away from the north siders and stay here for awhile.

Change of priests is always difficult, especially when someone has been pastor for 12 years as had Father Tom. But as in life, where no one lasts forever, so too in the Church people move about. And this is healthy. What doesn't change is the Gospel. It is the same message that the Church has been sending out for over 2,000 years. Messengers come and go and will continue to do so until the end of the world. It is our vocation as members of this great parish with its almost 100 year history to be faithful to the message entrusted to us at our baptism and to support and challenge one another on our spiritual journey to eternal life.

came in. Inadvertently, the sister left her purse behind, and Maria hurried after her. When she arrived with the purse at the convent, the sisters invited her in, and Maria found herself praying in their adoration chapel. "When I was there, something happened in my heart," she says. The only way she can put the experience into words is to say that she realized, "I'm home; this is where I belong." Maria is now discerning a religious vocation to the Missionaries of Charity.

Father Koys moved on from Immaculate Conception Parish in July of 2012. He was replaced by his friend and fellow Chicago native Father Robert P. Coleman. Father Ed Maxa would have stayed on at Immaculate Conception, but died suddenly on July 26 of the same year.

The Faces of Immaculate Conception's Future

Father Coleman, Immaculate Conception's sixth pastor, had served at St. Philomena Parish before doing missionary work in rural Guerrero, Mexico, for more than a decade. When he returned to America, he found the culture quite changed. "People sit at the dinner table looking at their phones, and texting people who aren't even there," he once complained. Now, however, Father is emailing as adeptly as the youngest among us.

While Father Coleman's Spanish is very good, his Lithuanian is not. When Father Kelpšas left in 2010, it marked the end of having a Lithuanian-speaking priest in residence. In order to keep the practice of celebrating Mass in Lithuanian going, a couple of priests helped out until, in 2012, Bishop Norvila sent Father Gedminas Keršys to assist at several Lithuanian parishes including Immaculate Conception.

Under Father Coleman's leadership, the church has been repainted, lighting fixtures cleaned and repaired, and a new sound system put in. In 2013, the school building was rented by UNO Charter School, and is currently being renovated to accommodate 600 students. The church hall has been converted to eight classrooms. A new addition is being added to the school building where the priest's garage used to be. The Mass honoring the Immaculate Conception's one hundredth anniversary was celebrated on September 21, 2014.

As part of the preparation for the event, the three shrines in the church were renovated—shrines representing the great devotion to the Blessed Mother shared by Lithuanians and Mexicans alike. The first shrine commemorates the apparition of Mary in Lithuania in 1608, under the title of "Our Lady of Šiluva." Its background colors are yellow, green, and red—representing the Lithuanian flag. Above a statue of Mary holding the Christ Child are the words, “Šiluvos Mergele Marija, Melski Už Mus,” which means, “Our Lady of Šiluva, pray for us,” in Lithuanian. On either side of Our Lady there are statues of Blessed Archbishop Jurgis Matulaitis and St. Casimir.

The second shrine is also dedicated to Our Lady, but under the title, “Immaculate Conception.” The words, “Immaculate Conception, Pray for Us,” appear in English, while the statue of Mary shows her with hands pressed together in an attitude of humble prayer. In 1858, a “beautiful lady” appeared to 14-year-old Bernadette Soubirous at Lourdes, France. When the child asked her who she was, Mary replied, “I am the Immaculate Conception.”

The third shrine emphasizes Divine Mercy. This devotion was revealed to Sister Faustina Kowalska, a Polish nun who became a mystic during the course of her short life (1905-1938). In visions, Our Lord told her how greatly He loves each member of the human race, and how urgently He wants us to repent of our sins, receive His boundless mercy, and join ourselves to Him in God’s love. Sister Faustina wrote all this down in her Diary, and had an image painted of Jesus showing red and white rays of grace streaming down to us from His Sacred Heart. This painting has become one of the most cherished images in contemporary Catholic life, and is displayed centrally in Immaculate Conception’s third shrine. On one side of it, there is a statue of Sister Faustina herself and, on the other, there is a statue of St. John Paul II, who greatly promoted this devotion. Above the painting and the statues the words, “Jesus, Confio En Ti,” proclaim, “Jesus, I Trust in You,” in Spanish.

The sixty families who joined together a century ago would be proud to know that, today, Immaculate Conception is an active urban parish with 2,500 registered families. Twelve-year-old Lucy Sanchez belongs to one of them. “To be part of this parish is a blessing God has given me,” she says. “I love this church.”

She certainly puts her time and energy where her heart is—lectoring, being an altar server, and witnessing to the Catholic faith in her own grade-school environment. “Some people think Mass is boring,” Lucy remarks. “They think it’s for little kids or old people only. They say, ‘I’m too busy,’ and they make excuses not to go. I wish they would realize that Mass is a great thing. In fact, it is the greatest thing of all.”

Also, Lucy sings. “That’s my talent,” she adds with a lovely laugh, “so I use it! I don’t really care what other people think. I only think of God. Someone said to me once, ‘God gave you this gift so that you could praise Him in a powerful way.’ So that is what I do.”

Lithuania became a Catholic country when its king, Mindaugas, was baptized in 1251 A.D. In 1457, a nobleman by the name of Petras Giedgaudas was inspired to build a church dedicated to the Nativity of Our Lady in the city of Šiluva. Pilgrimages to that place every September 8th became a central feature of Lithuanian popular devotion.

The Protestant Reformation would take its toll, however. The area became predominantly Lutheran, and then Calvinist, and the practice of the Catholic Faith nearly died out. Eventually, God Himself decided to intervene.

In 1608, some children were tending sheep near Šiluva when a beautiful woman, in a flowing blue and white dress, not at all typical of outfits they were familiar with, appeared on top of a nearby rock. She was holding a small child and weeping as though her heart would break. The children described their experiences and were invalidated by the adults around them, much as would happen to the three shepherd children in Fatima, Portugal, at the beginning of the following century. But they, too, stuck to their story, and went back to the site of the apparition the next day.

This time, they asked the beautiful woman why she was crying: because, “formerly in this place,” she answered, “My Son was honored and adored, but now all that the people do is seed and cultivate the land.” The Calvinists were not pleased. They tried to write off the apparition as the work of the Devil, but the story spread like wildfire, and they couldn’t suppress it.

It reached the ears of an old, blind man from a nearby village, who suddenly recalled the time when, years earlier, he had helped an area priest to bury, and thus preserve sacred items from a Catholic church. His sight was restored, and he was able to pinpoint the exact location to dig. In the chest which was recovered, the image now known as Our Lady of Siluva was found and providentially restored to the Lithuanian people.

They still had to keep fighting, however, in order to keep the Faith. In 1795, their country was taken over by Russia in an event known as the "Great Partition." It was forbidden to speak Lithuanian, to publish religious materials, or to travel without permission, which was seldom granted. The struggle for the preservation of Lithuanian culture and religion continued through the Soviet era and still continues, to some extent, in our own day—in Lithuania itself, and in the hearts of all who love her. At one time, Immaculate Conception was the largest Lithuanian parish in the United States of America.

Homero Frias joined Immaculate Conception in 2010, having come to the United States from Mexico in 2008. "I was an altar boy back at home, but I never really thought much about the Faith at the time," Homero attests.

As a recent immigrant to this country, Homero found work cleaning windows in downtown Chicago. It was going well until the day his harness broke, "and I fell down eight floors, and almost died." Instead, his life was incredibly spared.

As is recorded in the lives of many saints, Homero found his time of physical recovery to be a time of drawing closer to God. Four surgeries and two years of therapy later, Homero, still in his twenties, is firmly convinced that "He wants something of me." Serving for the time being as a catechist and lector, Homero intends to find out exactly what that something is.

Stories like these inspire confidence in the providence of God. Just as He prompted Immaculate Conception's sixty founding families to start the parish, so too He will guide and protect those responsible for continuing it in the future. Pablo Padillo, among others, feels a great responsibility to "keep the structures, as well as the ministries, going." May God bless Immaculate Conception Parish as it embarks on its next hundred years!

Our Lady of the New Millennium Statue
Visits Immaculate Conception Parish

Commissioned by Oak Lawn resident Carl Demma, Our Lady of the New Millennium is 8,400 pounds of stainless steel. The Madonna stands almost 34 feet and is draped in a glinting welded cloak. With open hands and gentle features, which appear somehow soft, she greets the faithful.

The statue depicting the mother of Jesus was on a kind of pilgrimage, traveling from parish to parish since its completion in 1999, the year before Demma died. It has towered over churches in and around Chicago, even appearing once at Navy Pier.

Worshippers came by the thousands to pray in parking lots to the statue as it stretched toward the heavens.

In 2011, after more than 10 years of touring, the three-story statue of the Virgin Mary found a permanent home in St. John, Indiana near St. John's Evangelist Church.

Appreciation Letter from the Sisters of St. Casimir

Dear Fr. Coleman and parishioners of Immaculate Conception Parish,

Thank you for welcoming us so warmly to the 100th anniversary celebration of your parish. The event was beautifully planned from the Eucharistic Liturgy on September 21st to the banquet on September 28th.

For one hundred years Immaculate Conception Parish been a blessing to so many people whose faith and vision and sacrifice have helped to build this place of prayer, education, healing, and Service, this dwelling place of God, a place of welcome for all people.

We Sister's of St. Casimir are grateful to have part of this wonderful history, initially as teachers and administrators in the school, and now as friends. Immaculate Conception School was established in 1916 and it was six years later in 1922 that our Sisters came to serve there, a ministry that lasted 77 years. After the school closed in 1999, some sisters remained in the parish, assisting in various ways until 2006.

It was our privilege to be part of this parish, to teach your children, to come to know you, and to take part in your worship, meetings, and celebrations. All of us have fond memories of being at Immaculate Conception and we were so happy to meet some of our former students earlier this year as part of the special events of this jubilee year.

We congratulate each and every one of you for making this parish what it is today. It began with strong Lithuanian roots and has grown to welcome people of diverse cultures and backgrounds, today primarily of Hispanic heritage

We pray that you may remain rooted in God's Holy Spirit, who is always making all things new. May you continue to embrace the future with the same hope and vision, and faith of those who came before you, as you recommit yourselves to a new century of living out your faith and love for God and neighbor at Immaculate Conception Parish.

We Sisters will keep you in our prayers. We love you and are honored to be part of your history.

With gratitude and prayers,
Sister Regina Dubickas
And the Sisters of St. Casimir

Sister Regina Marie Dubickas was a teacher and a Vocation and Formation Director before receiving a doctorate in Psychology in 1995 and beginning her work in a hospital setting and later in private practice. She always found it a privilege to come to know people at a deeper level, help them discover their inner richness and strength, and accompany them during some of the more difficult parts of their life journey. The words of Mother Maria Kaupas that are a particular inspiration to her are "God is here." Sister Regina Marie enjoys reading and poetry, pinochle and Sudoku. "Our Chapter theme, 'Behold I am doing something new! Do you not perceive it?' (Is 43,19) continues to resonate in my heart as we embrace the mystery of God's call and all that is part of the unfolding of our community's charism and mission. 'Led by God's Spirit and companioned by one another, we embrace our time as holy, our leadership as a gift, and our challenges as blessing.' (LCWR)."

Lord, Forgive Her, she did not see that the child in her womb was really ME

*"Before I formed you in the womb, I knew you;
before you came to birth,
I consecrated you;
I appointed you as prophet to the nations."

*Greetings to Immaculate Conception on your 100th year
Parish Anniversary!*

It is with great joy and love that we extend to you our greetings. We pray for God's rich blessings upon you and may the Triune
God enable you to accomplish the enormous tasks entrusted to you.
